Board of Regents okays implementation

PhD in Business a milestone for UCF

Approval by the Board of Regents of a UCF doctoral program in Business Administration is "a milestone in the making of a great institution," President Trevor Colbourn said following last month's board action.

"We want to recognize and appreciate the leadership of Chairman Terrell Sessums and Regent Joan Ruffier in this achievement," he said.

Colbourn viewed authorization as "a significant measure of recognition for the college that will assist in efforts to attract and recruit outstanding faculty members." He said that all programs in Business Administration should benefit from a doctoral program.

"The success would not have been possible without strong community support, and it is worth noting that well over a million dollars has been raised locally to help fund it," Colbourn said.

"In turn, the community will benefit from the enhancement of the educational opportunities provided by Central Florida's state university."

The board, meeting in Tampa on Oct. 24, authorized UCF to implement the program as early as next August. The actual start-up will be the top item on the agenda today when department chairmen and other administrative officers of the College of Business Administration meet.

Dean Clifford Eubanks said this program has been under consideration for the last 12 years. Planning began in earnest in 1979, the BOR approved a formal feasibility study in July of 1984 and authorized formal planning in July 1985.

Until the implementation authorization was given to UCF, and the University of South Florida on the same day, only Florida and Florida State had doctoral programs in business.

Eubanks commented, "Approval by the Regents recognizes our readiness to implement this program, as well as the high quality of the Business Administration faculty and our existing excellent graduate and undergraduate business programs. We view this program approval as another major achievement in the continuing development of this fine University."

"The level of private financial support shown for this program is another indication of our special relationship with the Central Florida community. This support unquestionably, over the long term, will have a very positive impact on our college."

Brian Rungeling, chairman of Economics, chaired the college planning committee responsible for the program proposals. Among data compiled was a list of 174 potential students for the program.

The program will be a traditional one, calling for a minimum of 60 hours of semester credits beyond the masters degree. Initially the program will concentrate on Accounting and Finance fields, while other fields in business will be offered as minors.

Seven additional faculty positions for the program are to be added over the next several years and graduate assistantships will be made available to doctoral program candidates.

In another action the BOR approved UCF's three-year PECO project priority list. The year 1987-88 includes $700,000 for equipment in CEBA-II, the Business Administration building funded for construction this year at $9 million; plus $271,000 for remodeling the old Engineering Building, and $200,000 for planning an Art Complex.

Year 1988-89 provides $2.6 million to build the Art Complex and the following year, 1989-90, provides $200,000 to equip it. Other third year funding includes $752,000 to remodel the Chemistry Building, $848,000 to remodel Howard Phillips Hall and $500,000 for a campus security facility.

All PECO projects are approved subject to legislative funding.

Another item of interest to UCF was a Florida Optometric Association proposal to the board's program committee that an optometry program be started at UCF. The committee referred the proposal to its staff for study.

Robert Kersten to relinquish position of Engineering dean

Dr. Robert D. Kersten, dean of the College of Engineering since its formation in 1968, will relinquish the post in August 1987. Kersten, 59, has requested a professional development leave when he steps down and said he would return to teaching and research duties at UCF in the Fall of 1988.

Under Kersten's leadership, UCF's College of Engineering enrollment has rocketed from 184 students in the charter year of operation to some 3,000 today, making it larger than 80 percent of the nation's engineering schools. The College of Engineering today offers some 27 undergraduate and graduate degree programs, compared to six in its first year of operation.

Last year, the Engineering College completed a move into a new 120,000-square-foot complex containing offices, classrooms and more than 40 specialized laboratories housing equipment valued at nearly $8 million.

"You have been the founding dean of one of the strongest professional schools on the UCF campus," President Trevor Colbourn wrote to Kersten in acknowledgement of the dean's decision. "Under your leadership, the College of Engineering has emerged as one of the best in the Southeast, thanks in part to the Five Year Enhancement Plan for which you were so vigorous an advocate. We are all indebted to you for your many contributions to the University as a whole and to engineering as a discipline which has had and will continue to have critical importance to Central Florida."

Kersten gained bachelor's and master's degrees from Oklahoma State University and received a PhD from Northwestern University in fluid mechanics. He devotes interest and time to engineering at the state and national levels.

Kersten serves on the executive committee of the Engineering Accreditation Commission as vice-chairman of operations and will become chairman-elect next year. He also chairs the Engineering Education Task Force, a consortium made up of four national engineering organizations. The Task Force seeks to increase federal funding for engineering education. Kersten recently stepped down as chairman of the Florida Board of Professional Engineers.

A national search will be conducted to find a successor.

Phonathon pledges come to $42,413

The three weeks' phonathon to raise money for individual colleges brought in a total of $42,413 in pledges.

The effort to gain support from alumni who had never given before was operated by volunteer faculty, students and alumni between Oct. 3 and 23.

A pleasant surprise, Tom Watkins, director of the Annual Fund, reported, is that 64 percent of those reached made pledges. Alumni totaling 1,723 pledged an average of $25.36, he said.

This was the first phonathon attempted to get pledges directly to colleges. The traditional University-wide phonathon will be held in March.

A happy occasion

Orlando businessman Wayne Densch gave UCF a million dollars for sports scholarships and in gratitude the newly-finished athletics facility was dedicated on Oct. 22 as The Wayne Densch Sports Center. After the ceremony, Densch and wife, Ann, and friend, Wilson Geldner (left) toured the facility, including, at this point, the football players' dressing room.

United Way goes over goal again

The United Way campaign for UCF employees reached $21,695 in pledges last week, ending the drive well ahead of its 1986 goal of $20,000.

It was the fourth straight year that UCF has exceeded its goal. W. Rex Brown, coordinator, said. Thirty-three percent of the University's workers agreed to payroll deductions, spreading their charitable contributions over the year.

Office of Instructional Resources
Subject: Film Previews

The Office of Instructional Resources will show the following films and videos in the Lecture/Presentation Room (LIB 107) from 12:30-1:50 p.m. You are invited to view some of the newest training materials.

Nov. 18:

OPEN THE DOOR — The film opens with Ron Masak ruining three communication opportunities: one with his boss, one with an employee, and yet another with his son. Wondering where he went wrong, he next finds himself attending Bill Welp's communication seminar. Hearing, but not believing, Masak invites Welp to his home to further discuss the "O.P.E.N." system — only this time in relation to the three tough communication problems he faced earlier. By the end of the film, he's not only learning how to use the system, but he's also successfully put that knowledge to work with his boss, employee, and son. (28 mins.)

ONE SMALL STEP — After a brief introduction by James Whitmore, the film opens with a series of scenes catching people in the act of being rude or uncooperative. "Our world and welcome to it," sighs Whitmore, as he next introduces a kaleidoscope of sights and sounds that typify the sometimes rude and indifferent world we live in. Whitmore then invites those people caught in the opening scenes to take another look at their actions and the world these actions create. Together, Whitmore, Dr. Roderic Gorney, and the rest of the cast offer viewers a variety of practical steps to take to make this world a better place in which to work and live.

VIVIAN PARRIES, EMPLOYEE OF THE MONTH
... good humor wins her good friends

Employee of the Month

Vivian Parries in harmony with work and associates

The atmosphere only a college or university can offer is what Vivian Parries sought when she moved from Nashville to Orlando 14 years ago.

And an agreeable nature to match her environment played a large part in her selection as Employee of the Month for November. One of her own student assistants nominated this administrative secretary to the dean of Extended Studies for the honor.

Mark Luba wrote, "Vivian cares a lot about the way our office, and the University, present themselves to the students in our Continuing Education programs. She is fun to work with and a good friend."

"Good friend" is how others describe her. "The one thing I would say about Vivian is that she is just as lovely on the inside as she is on the out," is the way a regular lunchtime companion, Marty Rouse, described her.

Another noon hour companion and former coworker, Iris Salazar, called her, "a sweet person, a pleasure to know."

When the Parries family lived at Nashville Vivian worked at Middle Tennessee State University and at Belmont College, liked the atmosphere of those campuses and when the family moved to the Azalea Park area she toured the UCF campus and liked what she saw.

Vivian began working for UCF 12½ years ago as a clerk typist in Purchasing and later was promoted to bid clerk. She has served in University Relations and Computer Services, accepting a promotion 2½ years ago to her present position.

"The work is hectic at times, there's a lot of pressure, but I enjoy it," Vivian said in describing what she does. She assists in setting up the many conferences staged to further adult education.

Extended Studies acts as the service agency for other colleges of the University. When Music and Education stage the Children's Music Workshop Extended Studies does the detail work, coordinating time, site, invitations and all else that make a large gathering run smoothly.

The cheerleaders from far and wide who populate the campus during the summer, find their training sessions a great fun time, especially since the details of their housing and eating are taken care without a thought by them.

The annual Governor's Conference is another big event that is months in the planning. It, of course, takes place off campus, as so many activities do that Extended Studies administers.

On top of her personal involvement in assisting in conference staging, Vivian must certify the office payroll, collect time cards, parcel work out to a clerk typist and two student assistants.

Aside from work Vivian gets a great deal of pleasure from singing in her church choir, and from her hobbies of playing the piano, bowling, biking and driving golf balls on the range. (She's still working up to the point of playing golf.)

Teleconference to air AIDS panel

UCF will have one of two receiving sites in Florida when a national teleconference airs a panel of experts discussing the disease AIDS.

The educational program will be seen on screen and heard at 220 sites on Friday, Nov. 14. Larry Hudson, assistant professor of Vocational Education, has arranged the UCF viewing at the Student Activities Center between 2 and 4:15 p.m. He asks anyone wishing to attend to preregister by calling x2939.

Panelists will be Mervyn Silverman, MD, president, American Foundation for AIDS Research; Constance Wofsky, MD, assistant chief of Infectious Diseases, San Francisco General Hospital; Nancy Click, RN, president, Association of Practitioners in Infection Control and a hospitalized AIDS patient.

SMOKEOUT

American Cancer Society and Orange Pulmonary Group plan to have the campaign truck used to promote no smoking pledges on campus between noon and 1 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 20. Everyone willing to give up smokes for one day will be encouraged to sign their names on the side of the truck.

Recycling dollars works just fine to cover cash lag

Question: When does $41,500 in funds add up to nearly $500,000?

Answer: When the dollars are recycled in the course of a year to provide some 3,175 individual loans to UCF students facing short-term financial emergencies.

During 1985-86, some $41,500 provided over the years by the University Club of Orlando for the purpose of helping students meet emergency obligations ballooned to a total loan value of $476,265 as students repaid their loans and new ones were made.

As a result of a 1986 contribution of $7,400 from the Orlando University Club, the short-term loan fund has grown to $48,900.

GRANTS AVAILABLE

HEALTH CARE FINANCING RESEARCH AND DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM (Health Care Financing Administration) — Funds are available for activities that will help to resolve major health care financing issues or to develop innovative methods for the administration of the Medicare and Medicaid programs. Due: Dec. 15.

INFORMATION SCIENCE (Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency) — This is a Broad Agency Announcement for various areas of scientific research in the information sciences that are of specific relevance to DARPA's ongoing program to bolster technology for defense needs. DARPA is specifically interested in funding such information science areas as: command, control and communications; microelectronics; intelligent systems; and computational research. Due: Dec. 17.

INTERNATIONAL RESEARCH AND STUDIES PROGRAM (Department of Education) — Opportunities for involving the use of computers for improving foreign language instruction and for projects involving the development of instructional materials for uncommonly taught foreign languages. Due: Dec. 2.

SECOND ANNOUNCEMENT — THE OFFICE OF HUMAN DEVELOPMENT SERVICES (DDS) ANNOUNCED ITS FISCAL 1987 FUNDING PRIORITIES FOR THE LARGEST FEDERAL GRANTS PROGRAM FOR SOCIAL SERVICES RESEARCH, DEMONSTRATION AND TRAINING PROJECTS — From 300 to 500 grants and cooperative agreements, totaling approximately $30 million will be awarded in FY 87. Awards will range from $10,000 to $200,000 with an average award of $100,000. Most grantees still must match every three dollars of HDS funds with one dollar of non-federal money. Major priority areas are: Support for Families; Community Based Care and Improvements in Local Services; Responding to the Needs of the Elderly; Individual Self-Sufficiency; Research and Evaluation; Education and Training in Aging; Education and Training Related to Children and Families; Child Welfare Services training and transfer of International Innovations. (There are a multitude of sub-categories under each of the above priority areas.) Due: Dec. 15.

ANNENBERG/CPB PROJECT — Support is available for projects that use telecommunication technologies to enhance the quality and availability of higher education. Included are projects that seek to develop course materials, tools and delivery systems that increase opportunities for those who wish to obtain a college-level education, especially at the baccalaureate level. To achieve that end, this program provides funds to develop innovative, academically rigorous course materials and to explore new applications of telecommunication technologies, including broadcast television and radio, video-disc, electronic text and computers, or any combination of those or other newly developed technologies. Pre-applications due: Dec. 30.

For further information, please contact Bruce Furino, x2671.

Preppy Handbook author Birnbach to appear here

Lisa Birnbach, whose off-beat look at college life materialized as The Official Preppy Handbook, with 1.4 million in sales, will bring her particular brand of humor to UCF on Thursday, Nov. 13.

Her comedy show at 8 p.m. in the UCF Student Center Auditorium is free and open to the public. A question and answer session will follow, preceding a reception for everyone who attends.

Since hitting the best-seller list in 1981, Birnbach has visited nearly 300 college campuses, interviewed some 2,500 students and mailed or handed out 5,000 questionnaires.

Birnbach graduated from Brown University in 1978 with honors in English. She has contributed articles to Rolling Stone, TV Guide, Travel & Leisure, Washington Post, and Parade. She has appeared on MTV, "The Today Show," and "Late Night with David Letterman."

Music method expert booked for workshop

The College of Education and the Department of Music are cosponsoring Arthur Becknell, expert on Dalcroze Eurhythmics, in a workshop on Monday, Nov. 10.

The two-stage workshop will begin at noon and run to 3 p.m., and continue from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. Registration will take place at the Music Office on the ground floor of the Humanities and Fine Arts Building. The Academic Affairs Foundation funds the visit by the University of Wisconsin faculty member and all sessions are free and open to the public.

Dr. Becknell will work with music students, education students and teachers of Central Florida on the basics of Dalcroze Eurhythmics, which is an approach to music education that emphasizes interpretation through physical movement.

For further information call Lucinda Thayer at x2874.

Second annual tax conference eyes new law

The Management Institute and the School of Accounting will present its second annual tax conference in the Health and Physics Building auditorium all day on Tuesday, Nov. 11.

Anyone interested may attend to hear discussion of new rules for individual taxpayers, dealing with the IRS, S Corporations under the new tax law, tax legislative process, tax planning for real estate after TRA '86, effect of new law on corporations and a panel discussion on financial planning.

Credits are available for those who attend. Registration will take place between 7:45 and 8:15 a.m. and classes will run from 8:30 to 5:20. The fee is $95, which includes a continental breakfast, luncheon, refreshments and meeting materials.

For further information call Doris Taylor at x2463, or Terry Lewis at x2446.

UCF Health nurses host annual meet

UCF's Student Health Center nurses will host the annual meeting of the Florida College Health Nurses' Association at the Langford Hotel, Winter Park, this Friday and Saturday.

The theme will be Nurturing Wellness and the speakers will be John G. Langdon, MD, director of the UCF Health Center, and Don Ardell, director of the UCF Health Education Center.

UCF's Judy Sayers is the association chairperson.
